Effective Fall 2023

The Department of English curriculum offers a flexible and challenging set of opportunities that allows all students to experience a wide range of approaches to literature, writing, and media. Students majoring in English are required to complete twelve (12) four-credit courses in the Department of English. Majors typically begin with ENG 190 Texts and Contexts then must take at least two courses at the 200-level. Because the Department of English believes that the study of literatures in English require both an historical awareness and an understanding of diverse cultural traditions, one 200-level course will study multiethnic or transnational literature, while another will cover the literature of one or more historical periods before 1900. These courses will prepare you to be successful at the 300-level, at which tier students will take more advanced courses in transnational literature and historical thinking, in addition to a higher-level writing course. At the 400-level, students will synthesize their learning in historical, transnational, and modern literatures in a capstone course that challenges students to create an original piece of scholarship; all majors must take at least one course at the 400-level. In addition to the 7 courses outlined above, students must complete five elective courses in the department, two of which must be at the 300-level or above.

Students majoring in English are encouraged to develop their majors in close consultation with an English Department faculty advisor. The diversity in our course offerings provides each student the opportunity to create an individualized program that reflects their interests and passions.
